Does a local church or organization have a duty to protect? What about having a trained and armed Safety Response Team?

Church has traditionally been a place where we expect our families to be safe from physical harm. We expect families to worship without the fear of being harmed or killed. But things have changed.

What does the Bible say about deadly force protection? Where does one begin getting a team together? Who should be on the team? Who shouldn't? What about training? What are the personal ramifications of using lethal force? Retired police officer, Pastor Tim Rupp answers these questions—biblically and tactically.

Tim Rupp retired from the San Antonio Police Department. He is a certified firearms instructor, Idaho police instructor, and wrote about his line-of-duty shooting incident in Winning a Gunfight. He is the founder of The Strong Blue Line, an initiative that helps churches support their local police. He also serves as pastor of River of Life and Cop Church in Idaho Falls.
